

AMERICAN INNOVATION AND CHOICE ONLINE ACT (S. 2992)

Sen. Alex Padilla (D-CA)

"While I am excited by the prospect of ensuring consumers benefit from greater interoperability and consumer data portability, I am equally concerned consumer privacy and cybersecurity don't seem to be given equal consideration or priority in the bill."

Addressed?

Yes No
X

Sen. Tom Cotton (R-AR)

"I have concerns with provisions in the bill that could require data sharing between American companies and bad actors under control of the Chinese Communist Party."

Addressed?

Yes No
X

Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-VT)

"I want to make clear that there are some important issues and ramifications that I'd like to see addressed...first and foremost, the bill makes it too difficult for online platforms to adequately protect consumers' privacy, [S.2992] creates a bar far too high to protect privacy without worrying about being penalized. I worry that could lead to a race to the bottom on American privacy."

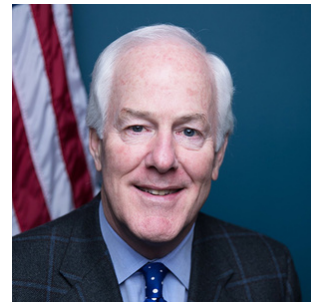

Addressed?

Yes No
X

Sen. John Cornyn (R-TX)

"I am concerned about the potential national security consequences of this bill. I am worried it will harm American business and reward our adversaries, most notably the People's Republic of China, the last thing we should be doing is weakening America's ability to compete in a global economy."

Addressed?

Yes No
X

Sen. Chris Coons (D-DE)

"I have remaining concerns about privacy and security, about our global competitiveness, and about services that are widely popular with consumers and my constituents."

Addressed?

Yes No
X

AMERICAN INNOVATION AND CHOICE ONLINE ACT (S. 2992)

Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-CA)

"The bill causes significant security concerns. Today, major platforms like Apple and Google take measures to address the privacy and cybersecurity of their users... this bill will actually prevent companies from taking steps to ensure that an application is safe before you download it from your phone."

Addressed?

Yes No
X

Addressed?

Yes No
X

"I worry a lot about the broad scope and the vague language that it [S.2992] contains that I believe would lead to an untold number of unintended and unforeseen consequences like harming many of the very same consumers that we are trying to protect."

Sen. Mike Lee (R-UT)

OPEN APP MARKETS ACT (S. 2710)

Sen. Alex Padilla (D-CA)

"A lot of consumers appreciate having a centralized payment processing and billing so they can quickly and conveniently dispute charges, cancel subscriptions, and limit the number of entities that have access to their financial information. Again, this is about consumer choice."

Addressed?

Yes No
X

Addressed?

Yes No
X

"I worry that this legislation [S.2710] although intended to stop abuses will lead to a situation where consumers are simply unable to protect their personal data or keep malware off of their devices."

Sen. John Cornyn (R-TX)

